SATURDAY, FERRUARY 11, 1800. Senator Nicholson's Speech.

The Booser of yesterday quotes a couple of extracts from Senator Nichotson's speech, which it thinks contains " very sensible and judicious advice to the Republican party." The Bonner than makes what it torms "a slight alteration of the Senator's wholesome and fercible remarks to the Republicans," and thinks them thus altered " most aptly " adapted to the Democratic party.

The Barner, thinking to hoist Mr. Nicuouses with pondent of the New York Thous: his own peterd reasons thus, if we understand it | Senator Davis is a nervously-built man, of midassurance, is to prevent the exercises of slevery.

We submit that the article of the Banuer falls dant as a drift of scaweed flung up to be sundries who against that the article of the hamber this on some rock by the last billow of a tempest. The short of justice to Senator Nicholson's speech. Mr. whole head is massive and lion-like; the forchead Nicasons as quoted by the Bauter says: " You broad and low; the eyes, dark, large and instreless other us that the primary if not the only object of execut when excited by passion-the lower lids having your organization is to prevent the expansion of a nervous lagginess, (to coin a word,) as if filled with slavery." But Mr. Nichotsay proceeds to demon-in hold relief; the mouth passionate powerful and strate that the assurance thus given by the Black voluptions; already a development of what will be Republicans is not true in fact. Mr. Namotsov's in old age, a palican sack of double chin; the comargument is, that if your as urance were true, there would be nothing further practical in their organizarion and they might disband. But the fact that life in his organization, and will probably be a pub they do not disband, having accomplished their lie character of eminence—having ripened but slow avowed mission, "the exclusion of slavery from having heard him speak, it can only be inferred from Kansas "I a conclusive that they have ulterior designs him physique that his voice is a deep, rich double upon Southern institutions. You would avail yourselves of "the force of public opinion and pri e action." to organize new free States as rapidly as possible, with the view of hastening the consum mation of your object of exterminating slavery by an amendment of the Federal Constitution

Assuming this to be your programme, we can easily understand the policy which governs you in continuing the sectional conflict. We can comprehead why it is that you so indignantly repel th charge that your organization is making war on the inclinations of the South, and why you asseverate with so much carnestness that you intend to keep within the letter of the Constitution in your oppos tion to slavery. You carrie with the Abolitionists in the end to be accomplished. You disagree as to nists are open enemies; they would strike down the Constitution and destroy our institutions at a single blow. You sould take time and rely upon the growth of your sectional strength to secure a public opinion that will have force enough to destroy our institutions in accordance with the forms and letter of the Constitution. To the South the result is equally disastrons, selether it is brought about by the one policy or the other.

If the pretext for the organization of the Black Republican party is swept away, our readers will reject the conclusion of the Baute that there is nothing practical in the Democratic organization. On | Monday, Feb. 13th, 1800, at 10 o'clock, The anti-slavery aggressionists are as bold and defiant as ever. They are actively engaged in preparing for the approaching Presidential campaign.
